TOTAL POPULATION, INCREASE, AND DISTRIBUTION.

Population of the state.—Alabama was organized as a territory in March, 1817, and was admitted to the Union as the twenty-second state in December, 1819. According to the Fourteenth Census, taken as of January 1, 1920, its population is 2,348,174, which represents an increase of 210,081, or 9.8 per cent, since 1910. During the same period the population of the United States increased by 14.9 per cent. The following summary shows the population of Alabama from 1820 to 1920, inclusive, together with the number and per cent of increase for each decade, in comparison with the per cent of increase for the United States as a whole:

Counties.—Alabama has 67 counties, of which 46 show increases and 21 decreases as compared with 1910. There have been no changes in county boundaries during the last decade. (See Table 1.)

Density of population.—The total land area of the state is 51,279 square miles. The average number of inhabitants to the square mile in 1920 is 45.8 (see Table 1), as against 41.7 in 1910 and 35.7 in 1900.

Minor civil divisions.—The political units into which the counties are divided are collectively termed "minor civil divisions." The primary divisions of the Alabama counties are the election precincts, which number 1,318 (including 1 precinct for which no population was returned in 1920 and several for which the population was not returned separately), and also the independent city of Mobile. The secondary divisions are 294 in number, comprising 53 cities and 241 towns, including 3 towns for which the population was not returned separately. Each of three cities and one town is coextensive with the precinct in which located, and each of five cities and four towns comprises two or more precincts or parts of precincts. (See Table 2.)

POPULATION—ALABAMA.

Cities.—Alabama has 53 cities, of which Birmingham, with a population of 178,806, is the largest. Mobile, with 60,777, is the only other city in the state having more than 50,000 inhabitants. (See Tables 3 and 4.)

The following summary shows, for each city having 10,000 or more inhabitants in 1920, the population at each census for which figures are available, together with the number and per cent of increase during the preceding decade:

Consequently the territory comprised within any one class of cities or that designated as urban or as rural does not remain fixed, because any given place may, through the growth or the decline of its population, pass from one class to another at successive censuses. The proportion of the population of Alabama living in places of 2,500 or more increased from 11.9 per cent in 1900 to 17.3 per cent in 1910 and to 21.7 per cent in 1920.			1920	11,996	3,559	42.7

Urban and rural population.—The Census Bureau defines urban population as that residing in cities and other incorporated places having 2,500 inhabitants or more, and rural population as that residing outside such incorporated places.

The following summary presents, for the last three censuses, figures showing the urban and rural population of the state distributed among places grouped according to specified limits of population. The classification for each census is based upon the population of the various places as shown by the returns of that census. Consequently the territory comprised within any one class of cities or that designated as urban or as rural does not remain fixed, because any given place may, through the growth or the decline of its population, pass from one class to another at successive censuses. The proportion of the population of Alabama living in places of 2,500 or more increased from 11.9 per cent in 1900 to 17.3 per cent in 1910 and to 21.7 per cent in 1920.
